Strong policy context requires translation into effective implementation, across scales:

Community engagement

Filling gaps in knowledge

Communication for behavioural change

Strengthening legislation and rule of law

“I urge all consumers, suppliers and governments to treat crimes against wildlife as a threat to our sustainable future”

United Nations Secretary-General
Ban Ki-moon, World Wildlife Day 2015

Strengthening the evidence base

Keeping the evidence base under review

Strengthening monitoring systems

Filling identified knowledge gaps

Regional processes

Key role of Regional cooperation to ensure coherent and collaborative approaches

Effective national and local implementation of commitments

Coherent response - across scales

Pro-active information sharing

Better use available resources

Collectively determined priorities

Many different scales...

- Linking action across supply chains – within and across geographic scales
- Addressing large-scale volumes of trade as a priority to address organized crime
- Addressing short-term priorities for enforcement and awareness raising
- Addressing long-term conditions for sustainability and sustainable use
- Scale of environmental impacts in relation to other threats (climate change, habitat loss)

Saving wildlife requires acting now with collective, well-coordinated and evidence-based action...across all scales!
